

The Fir Tree

There once was a little fir tree who wanted to be big.

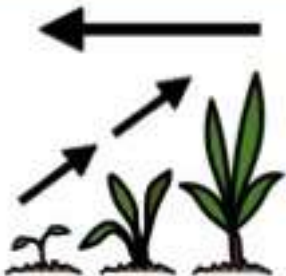

He lived in the forest with the other trees, a hare and the birds.

The other trees got taken away and he wondered where they went.

He heard all about Christmas from a robin.

He grew tall and was the grandest tree in the forest.

He became a Christmas tree and listened to stories told by the children.

When Christmas was finished, he went in the attic and told stories to the mice.

In the end, he was put on a fire, but he was happy as he had had a good life.

In this play there are:

songs

musical instruments

sound
effects

puppets

lights

people dancing

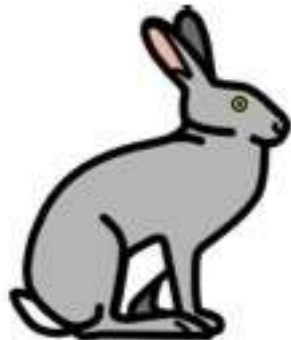

actors

sad themes

fir tree

hare

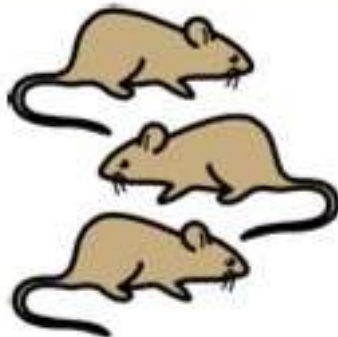

stork

robin

christmas

mice

wood cutter

children